MT. STERLING, Ky., Nov. 27.—"Wick" Simpson, a young painter, walked into White's drug store, purchased some carbolic acid and drank seven-eighths of an ounce of the drug. He was seen to take the poison, antidotes were administered immediately and physicians summoned. He was taken to his home and is in a critical condition. Simpson had made no threats of suicide and the attempt to take his life was a surprise. He is about 30 years old and married. Simpson is badly burned, but it is believed will recover.

COLORED COLUMN.

Educational Rally.

At the First Baptist church Friday night there will be a meeting in the interest of the new Berea college for colored people.

The colored people of Winchester have the same spirit of progress that the white people exhibit. They are at the front when it comes to doing things. When the Kentucky Wesleyan College burned, several liberal contributions were made by colored men though none of their race can ever be a student at the college.

The colored people themselves, propose to raise fifty thousand dollars to complete the four hundred thousand dollars of endowment with which the new school will start.

At The Hip.

The largest crowds ever assembled at the Hippodrome were present Thursday afternoon and evening. Many colored people from nearby cities were present. From ten to eleven p. m. there was dancing. A happier assembly of people was never gotten together in any city. A feature of the Hippodrome is good order. Since the opening in February, nothing of a disturbing nature has occurred. The young colored people pride themselves that they can behave as well or better than the white people.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hadden, of Mt. Sterling, spent Thanksgiving with F. B. Endicott and family.

Hard.

About the hardest task we know of is trying to entertain a bashful man.

MEETING GROWING IN INTEREST AND POWER

Dr. J. W. Porter Preached Two Sermons on Thanksgiving Day.

The meetings at the First Baptist church are still growing in interest and power. Yesterday was the greatest day of the series of meetings. J. W. Porter preached a most powerful sermon on "Gratitude and Thanksgiving." The house was packed with anxious people to hear the sermon. One young man was converted, and united with the church.

The attendance at the evening service was more than could wet into the building. Dr. Porter preached on "The Power of God in Drawing Sinners Unto Christ." It was one of his most effective sermons. There were ten additions to the church, some of the leading citizens of the county.

The meetings perhaps will be continued indefinitely. There have been about eighty additions to the church. Services Friday evening at 7:30.

ALLEGED SLAYERS ARE HELD TO GRAND JURY

Mrs. Amelia Allen and Husband Are Refused Bail By Judge Taulbee.

JACKSON, Ky., Nov. 27.—Mrs. Amelia Allen and her husband, Theodore Allen, charged respectively as principal and accessory with the murder of Mrs. Fanny Tutt, were Saturday refused bail in their examining trial before County Judge S. S. Taulbee, and remanded to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

The examination was begun Tuesday afternoon and was not concluded until late Wednesday evening, eight witnesses having been introduced for the Commonwealth and only the two defendants in their own behalf.

It was shown by different witnesses that threats had been made by the Allens, and that they went into the home of Mrs. Tutt, while her husband was away and shot her down. Mrs. Tutt's dying declarations were to this effect, and the circumstantial evidence bore this out. There was great excitement over the killing, and the court room was crowded during the trial.

The Allens were not able to employ attorneys and the court appointed A. H. Patton and M. H. Holliday to defend them. Allen stated that he had a brother somewhere in the West that might help him. Mrs. Allen has an uncle living in Lee county who is a section foreman on the Lexington & Eastern railroad.

Judge Taulbee today ordered all the men from the court room and then had them searched before they were allowed to re-enter.

ENGINEER IS BADLY SCALDED IN WRECK

Engine Derailed on C. & O. and Edward Owen is Seriously Injured.

Spreading rails caused a wreck at Ashland Junction, two miles from Ashland, at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in which Edward Owens, who for the last thirty years has been connected with the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway in the capacity of engineer, came near losing his life and he is now at the Good Samaritan Hospital at Lexington in a serious condition, his body and limbs being terribly scalded.

Mr. Owens' escape from immediate death is remarkable. No one else was injured although the engine derailed the train jumped the track and rolled down a steep embankment with both engineer and fireman in their cab.

Mr. Owens was caught in his cab and pinned beneath the engine, which fell on the side on which he was seated. The boiler was smashed and the escaping steam enveloped his body. It was some time before the heroic methods employed to release him from his perilous position were successful and when he was finally dug out of the debris, it was found that his lower limbs, left arm and shoulder and right side were terribly scalded. His face and left side were also cut and bruised.

Fireman Gost escaped without injuries, although he was unable to get out of his cab until after the engine reached the foot of the embankment. The rest of the train did not leave the track and no one else was hurt.
